- To offer possibilities of contacts between amateur filmmakers and the audience during the Festival.

Presentation

Rules of the Competition

Amateur Films Category

Article 1: Amateur Films Category

The Festival International Nature Namur, Amateur Films category, is open to all non-professionals of image, sound and editing (*): individuals, associations, clubs, classes...

(*) A filmmaker is considered non-professional when his/her income from filmmaking is lower than 50% of his/her total income.

Article 2: Theme

The admitted films are amateur films dedicated to discovery, observation, protection and conservation of wild nature.

All topics related to nature can be exploited.

Here are some examples of themes that have been highlighted in the last 28 years of the Festival:

- The wild fauna and flora of all countries.
- Special and rare behaviours of animals from our countries and from far away.
- The natural environment of all countries and its management.
- Interactions between plant and animal species.
- Fauna and flora as managed by humans (fish farming, forest management, agriculture, revalidation centres, hunting, invasive species, zoos...).
- Human activities in wildlife and/or the threat these activities represent for wildlife (human-wildlife cohabitation, water purification and use, transhumance, gardens, oceans, forests, quarries, hedges, brownfield sites, wildlife discovery oriented activities...).
- Environment change.
- Animal welfare.

The theme can be treated in a humorous or poetic way, as a long shot, as a documentary, a commercial, poetry, a fiction, etc. Originality, rhythm and script are to be favoured.

By entering this competition, the filmmaker reveals his or her interest for wildlife and environment and he/she gives evidence of his/her respectful behaviour towards the animal and plant species.

Originality and the beauty of the images as well as the script (story and comments) will be given priority but the classical criteria (framing, wildlife sound picking, editing mastery...) and the environmental criteria (no destruction and no disturbance caused by the shooting, respect of the environment...) will of course be appreciated as well.

We can help you establish contacts and facilitate your access to particular areas: quarries, brownfield sites, Natura 2000 zones...

Article 3: Registration

The registration to the competition is free of cost and is taken into account only if all boxes are correctly filled in.

Every filmmaker will be allowed to submit several films to the selection.

Please leave 5 seconds black before the first image (not counted in the total number of minutes).

The registration is done online via one of the hereafter mentioned possibilities:

- On the online submission service “FilmFreeway” (filmfreeway.com)

Remark: you can send several films on the same medium.

The filmmaker commits him/herself not to take legal action against the non-profit organisation of the Festival for the use by third parties of the film or the images it contains.
